They whose hearts are whole and strong,
Loving holiness,
Living clean from soil of wrong,
Wearing Truth's white dress—
They unto no far-off height
Wearily need climb;
Heaven to them is close in sight
From these shores of time.Only the anointed eye
Sees in common things
Gleam of wave, and that of sky,
Heavenly blessings.
To the hearts where light has birth
Nothing can be dreary;
Budding through the bloom of earth,
Heaven is always near.
—Lucy Larcom.WHY DO WE WORRY?
Why do we worry about the nest?
We only stay for a day,
Or a month, or a year, at the Lord's behest,
In this habitat of clay.Why do we worry about the road,
With its hill or deep ravine?
In a dismal path, or a heavy load,
We are helped by hands unseen.Why do we worry about the years
That our feet have not yet trod?
Who labors with courage and trust, nor fears,
Has fellowship with God.The best will come in the great
"to be";
It is ours to serve and wait,
And the wonderful future we soon shall see,
For death is but the gate.THE SHADOW ON THE BLIND.
Last night I walked among the lamps
that gleamed,
And saw a shadow on a window
blind,
A moving shadow, and the picture seemed
To call some scene to mind.I looked again; a dark form to and fro
Swayed softly as to music full of rest,
Bent low, bent lower—still I did not know,
And then, at last, I guessed.And through the night came all old memories flooding,
White memories like the snowflakes
round me whirled,
"All's well!" I said; "the mothers
still sit rocking
The cradles of the world!"OPEN THE DOOR.
Open the door, let in the air;
The winds are sweet and the flowers are fair.
Joy is abroad in the world today;
If our door is wide it may come this way.
Open the door!Open the door, let in the sun;
He hath a smile for every one.
He hath made of the raindrops gold
and gems,
He may change our tears to diamonds.
Open the door!Open the door of the soul; let in Strong, pure thought which shall banish sin.
They will grow and bloom with grace
divine,
And their fruit shall be sweeter than that of the vine.
Open the door!Open the door of the heart; let in Sympathy sweet for stranger and kin.
It will make the halls of the heart so fair.
That angels may enter unawares.
Open the door!BE HAPPY TODAY.
Be happy today
And sing as your way;
Be cheerful and true,
And right loyal, too,
May the time never come
When you cannot say,
I'll be happy today,
And I'll sing as my way!"Be courageous today
And then you will find
That Jesus, our helper,
Is wondrously kind,
And the thing that seemed hard
Will be easy to do,
Because we sought Jesus,
And found Him most true.The time never comes
For us to be sad,
Christ told us to ever
Be joyous and glad;
Because He is our stay,
Our glorious King,
Our hearts everfree,
We constantly sing.

BETHEL POSTOFFICE.

Subscription $1.50 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $2.00 will be charged.

Entered as second class matter, May 7, 1904 at the post office at Bethel, Maine.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1910.

Laugh, gosh darn ye, laugh.

Did you get hit by the land-slides?

Any Republicans in your town these days?

That's a victory worth waiting 30 years for.

Can you rejoice with those that do rejoice or are you weeping with those that weep?

THE PROBLEM OF FARM LABOR.

To commercialize and build up agriculture in the Eastern States will require additional stable labor, which at present must be drawn from the immigrant farmers. The classification, segregation, and distribution of these immigrants is the work of the Division of Immigration in the Bureau of Commerce and Labor, and through this channel an adequate supply of farm labor should be secured. The location of the immigrant farmer as determined by the local soil and labor conditions is the work of the corresponding State agencies.

The great transcontinental systems, with the active cooperation of the Eastern railroads, have recognized the value of the immigrant and have utilized him in developing and using the soil resources of the West. The time has now come when the Eastern railroads can with profit look to using a part of the immigrant supply in developing and utilizing through intensive culture the soil of their own States.

It remains to show that the proper use of the soil can be secured and labor be properly directed in cooperation with capital, in order to insure that reasonable degree of success required of other commercial enterprises.

HOW CONGRESS CAN HOLD DOWN THE APPROPRIATIONS.

The real remedy for unnecessarily increasing appropriations lies in the adoption of a rule upon the organization of the House in the Fifty-second Congress, authorizing the appointment of one committee sufficiently large to represent all sections of the country, vested with exclusive jurisdiction over all estimates for appropriations. This would be a genuine reform to the rules of the House—one that would be of practical benefit to the people. It would save to the Federal Treasury from fifty to seventy-five millions of dollars annually.

Although the suggested change in the rules is within the power of the House to make, its accomplishment would be impossible without the aid of a strong public sentiment. This is so for the reason that it will encounter the determined opposition of about one hundred and eighty members who are, or have been, members of one or the other of these seven appropriating committees. The membership of these committees is naturally fastened to the prestige and influence that attaches to service on a committee having appropriating jurisdiction. Their combined effort and influence would, therefore, have to be met and overcome. For this reason the proposed modification of the rules cannot be effected until through the press and suggestions of the country there is created a public sentiment so strong in its favor that members who have not had earlier on one of these committees will not be content to sit on the bench of non-participation, but will be forced to accept of a rule for the appointment of a single committee to have control of all appropriations. Review of the House.

Don't, Bethel, keep on drinking. Laugh and the world laughs with you. Weep and you weep by yourself. The power is on your side.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The season is drawing to a close at the old Longfellow house. Each week will now show less attendance, as is usual. It will be a good season, full as good as was expected with even better satisfaction felt by the visitors. It is now one of our permanent institutions. Recently there have been visitors from London, Kent, and Margate, England, besides our own country and Canada. Since the house was first opened in 1901 over 72,000 have paid admission.

Last week it was 594 and this season the total attendance is 7520. That is 281 more than last year for the same time. Not a person but has seemed to fully enjoy their visit to the old home of Longfellow.

J. A. Beale of Brunswick has raised more than a bushel of potatoes this season from old tubers that were not even planted. Some potatoes of last year's crop were left in the cellar, and when a few days ago he started to take them out he found that the old ones had increased. The sprouts growing out of the old potatoes produced good sized new potatoes without soil.

One of the curiosities in the mineral cabinet of Frank C. Shaw of South Waterford is a large paper spear or arrowhead which undoubtedly dates back to the days of the Indians among these Oxford county hills. Aside from its interest as a specimen of Indian work, the story of its finding is unique. It is in two fragments now, the one perfectly fitting into the other. Mr. Shaw not long ago found one half in the gully back of the little shop that stands by the road. The other half was picked up 20 years ago by Mr. Shaw's uncle, James M. Shaw, at a point 100 rods distant from where the other was found. Both were discovered on what is now White Rock Farm, owned by Mr. Shaw and occupied by him. He says that Jasper has been identified here on the ledge which forms this great hill, so that in all probability the Indians used this stone for their implements of warfare. The rest of Mr. Shaw's mineral collection also is part of James J. Shaw's valuable aggregation, the remainder of which is now owned in Rumford and valued at $2,000.

Because of the retirement of Samuel Merrett as editor and David O. Evans as advertising manager of the Success Magazine a report was current that the publication was about to pass into the hands of new owners. N. A. Lewis of Portland, N. Y., was mentioned. It also was reported that the magazine would experience a change of heart in matters political. Dr. O. B. Marden, who presided Mr. Merrett as editor and who, with David Higgins, controls a substantial majority of the stock of the magazine, stated that there was any truth in the reports. He also said that the publication's policy would remain the same.

HANDICAPPED

This is the Case With Many Bethel and Rumford Falls People.

Too many Bethel and Rumford Falls citizens are handicapped with a bad back. The increasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and sleeping or sitting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest and in the morning is stiff and lame. Pains and lameness may give relief but cannot cure the disease. To eliminate the cause and achieve your most sure relief.

Don't's Kidney Pills cure such kidney and cure them permanently. Can you doubt Rumford Falls evidence?

A. B. O'Connell, chief of Police, Lincoln St., Rumford Falls, Me., says: "During the past year I was annoyed greatly by a kidney weakness. I felt miserable and at last decided to try a good kidney remedy. I heard of many people speak in favor of Don't's Kidney Pills that I procured a box and although I did not use them in strict accordance with the directions, I nevertheless procured great relief. I do not hesitate to recommend Don't's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMann Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Don't's—and take no others.

If you want a light and one that can be easily kept in regard, under your nose, get Don't's Kidney Pills. They are made from purest ingredients and are guaranteed of satisfactory results.

THE END OF THE JAYHAWKERS.

During the civil war a celebrated Kansas jayhawker named Bugbee rode at the head of a band of outlaws, leaving a desolated track behind him. Among his other crimes was the murder of the Hamblin family on their farm near Marysville. Mary Hamblin, aged twenty, was engaged to Elliot Frost, a soldier in the Union army. Frost was discharged at the end of the war and went home to Kansas to find only the grave of the girl he had expected to welcome him. Standing there by the heaped earth, now covered with waving grass, he swore that he would not rest till he had killed Bugbee.

Bugbee, finding that Kansas was becoming too law abiding for further operations, crossed the line and went into Colorado. He took with him seven or eight of his jayhawkers with a view to operating on the different stage lines in the region about Denver. Frost went to Denver and heard at once that the Bugbee gang was the terror of every road leading out of that town, but it was impossible to locate them. At one time they would operate on the route southward to Pike's peak and the next day would be heard of on the road leading south-eastward into Indian Territory. Then within a week a robbery would be committed on the south fork of the Platte, and Bugbee would turn out to have led the robbers. No vigilance committee could locate them.

Frost who had been a cavalryman during the war, secured a horse and started for the last place the Bugbee gang had left their visiting cards. The country is an unbroken plain, and the young man could ride where he pleased, but so could the road agents, and it was more difficult to head them off than if they had had to travel only by the roads.

After a months chase Frost tracked the gang to a point within the entrance of the canyon directly west and about twenty miles from Denver. Frost rode into Golden City one evening, fifteen miles west of Denver, and while eating his supper heard a miner who had come down from Empire tell of meeting a prospecting party of eight men in camp five miles up the canyon who had asked him when the Denver coach would pass up, they wishing to take passage up to the mine. Frost, putting this with information he already had, was sure the prospectors were the Bugbee gang and that they would rob the next coach that passed up. Since the coach would not pass the point where the miner had met them till the next afternoon about 2 o'clock, here was time to lay a trap.

There was nothing at Golden City except a hotel, but a fresh horse was obtained, and Frost put spurs to Denver. There were several exponents of the civil war in Denver, one of them, Striker, who had served with Frost. The two made up a party consisting of young veterans and three other picked men, six in all, and taking with them certain apparel they intended to see, rode out in the early morning to Golden City.

At noon the Denver coach came along, and the passengers alighted for dinner. When they were about to re-enter the coach Frost asked them to remain a while at the tavern, place he had a party of friends with him who wished to take a short ride. The passengers, consisting of both men and women, demurred, but the riding party were well armed, and they stepped aboard, each with his baggage, a bundle done up in brown paper.

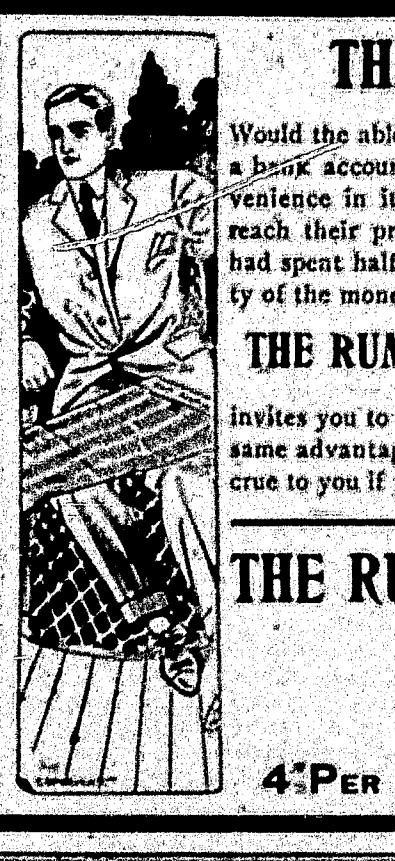

As soon as they were out of sight from the tavern a halt was made, the driver informed that they expected the coach to be robbed, and four of the men opening their bundles, put on women's attire. Then the coach was driven on. Frost, dressed as a woman, sat next the driver, a Derringer pistol in each hand. Striker sat next the other door with two revolvers concealed under the folds of the dress he wore. All had their arms in some way concealed.

They had gone about four miles and were ascending a rise when they heard the word "Halt" followed by "Throw up your hands!" The coach came to a dead stop, and two masked men opened the door, ordering the passengers to alight. Supposing Frost to be a woman, each rather took hold of an arm to help him. His arms were crossed over his chest under his cloak. Suddenly there was a double report, and two robbers fell dead.

Heavily laden Frost began his exit from the coach when a woman emerged from the other door, followed in rapid succession by two other women and two men. All of whom opened fire on the men who were standing motionless in the road, some with their hands in their pockets, others with folded arms. Four of them were shot down before they could draw their weapons, and two others while they were defending their fire, which on account of their surprise was not effective.

Of the two Frost killed with his Derringers one was Bugbee. The sight of him lying cold in death. Frost's heart was not so hard.

It is said starvation is terrible. But I know that's not the case. Nothing is so terrible as being one To sit up this week space.

seemed in a measure to wash away a brooding that had been with him ever since he had made his resolution while standing beside Mary Hamblin's grave. He looked up and, seeing his women dressed men dangle around the fallen robbers, for the first time in months smiled.

The ambushers re-entered the coach and drove back to the tavern. When it was learned that they had not only saved the passengers from being robbed, but had exterminated the Bugbee gang, they were feted as heroes and invited to partake of the best in the house.

NEW DEPARTURE.

After two months of remarkable sales, W. E. Bosserman, the enterprising druggist, says that his plan of selling at half price the regular 50 cent size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success he has ever known.

He has sold hundreds of bottles of the specific; and as yet has not had one returned, although he stands ready at any time to refund the money should any customer be dissatisfied.

Anyone suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, or the general tired feeling, caused by inactive liver and bowels or disordered digestion, should take advantage of W. E. Bosserman's new departure.

On Thursday the case of Marston vs. Childs was heard. The case was rather unique in a way, it being a case of Childs throwing stones at the Marston house and also threatening to shoot Mrs. Marston. The case was heard before Judge Stearns, Geo. D. Bisbee appearing for Walter Marston and J. B. Stevenson for Geo. Childs. This is a case which has been of long standing, the Childs family doing all in their power to incite the Marston family and this was the culmination on Thursday. The Judge found Childs guilty and fined him. Stevenson took an appeal and Childs was released on bail being furnished to the amount of one hundred dollars. Isaac Dunn and Robert Burroughs went his bonds.

Miss Louise Kilder gave a shower party on Friday night, at E. W. Howe's in honor of Miss Alice Lucas. There were five tables of whist and at the end of the playing, each one was asked to figure up their score and it was found that Miss French had secured the highest score. Then Miss Kilder announced that Miss French had decided to give her prize to Miss Lucas and a large tin dish was filled with white ribbons and sweet peas was brought in filled with packages of all kinds. Miss Lucas received many beautiful and useful gifts of cut glass and linen. After the gifts had been viewed by all present, Miss Kilder announced that as her cook was away, she would have to ask the party to go down town with her to lunch at Bowers & Vallee's. A most delectable lunch, consisting of sandwiches, salad, coffee, ice cream and fancy crackers was served and each lady had as a souvenir at her plate, a large chocolate peppermint in a small box, tied with ribbon. The affair was pronounced a splendid success by all present and closed by all of the young ladies wishing Miss Lucas the best of success and happiness in her married life.

It is hoped that many will take advantage of this opportunity and buy their food at the sale instead of cooking it themselves.

The Ladies' Aid of Virginia held their first meeting after the summer vacation with Mrs. Harvey Neal of Virginia St. Thursday afternoon, Sept. 8th. They decided to give a baked bean supper at the chapel Friday, Sept. 23rd. Their supporters have enjoyed quite an enviable reputation, and it is expected that this one will be up to the mark.

Hotel Rumford will be closed until Sept. 19th, when it will be opened again under the management of W. C. Stevens. The citizens of Rumford will not be obliged to blush with shame and say that the only first class hotel in town is closed, when asked by strangers. This will surely be a most satisfactory arrangement for all concerned.

The Ladies of the Universalist Aid held a meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the church parlor and a little informal reception was tendered Mrs. W. E. Humphrey of Barre, Vt. Mrs. Humphrey was a prominent worker in the Aid formerly and much interested in all of the work of the church. Light refreshments were served and a pleasant time enjoyed.

DON'T BREAK DOWN.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause break-downs. You can't overtax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitter-matches, taste medicine. Mrs. J. K. Van de Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain, for three months, I owe wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. See at Chas. Reynolds' of Rumford Falls. Nathan Reynolds' of Canton. H. J. Reynolds' of Biddeford. C. A. Gardiner's of Biddeford.

RULES FOR CARD LEAVING.

Times change and every few years makes a difference in the rules of social etiquette and this applies to card leaving, which, in point of act, is the basis or rock on which friendships are formed and acquaintanceships are maintained. As a consequence, any neglect of this business or mistake in its performance is apt to tell unfavorably against the perpetrator of the offense. The broad, general rules of card-leaving are as follows:

A married woman leaving cards upon another married woman leaves one of her own and two of her husband's. If the friend called upon is a widow or single woman, the visitor should leave her own card, but only one of her husband's. In the case of the lady who pays the visit being herself single or a widow, she naturally only leaves her card. If she be a widow with a daughter, the daughter's name should be printed below that of her mother on the latter's visiting card. Some exercise that freedom of sex in the matter of card leaving and prefer to do the business or leave it undone at their own great pleasure.

Some people seem to be in doubt if a card or cards should be left in the event of the lady called upon being found at home. The answer is, certainly not. The still, small voice of common sense must surely be heard to whisper, "Why should cards be left if the friend is found at home and the visit duly paid?" Then the question of "sending in" cards seem to disturb the minds of many. Cards should never be "sent in" except when a call is made on a matter of business. Such occasions as this include a visit to a strange doctor or lawyer, a call to ask for the character of a servant or to look over a house. With regard to leaving cards after entertainments, our social law enforces that they should be left after balls, dinners, parties, weddings and garden parties, but never after teas or luncheons.

THE PROGRESS OF WOMEN.

The important places which women now occupy outside the home, which latter place some unprogressive people consider is their only sphere, is astonishing. They have attained distinction in nearly every profession and in other occupations not calling for severe manual labor. In this they are happier than their sisters are whose fate casts them among semi-barbarous races where they are obliged to perform hard physical labor that men do in civilized countries.

Our women in this day have attained their rights almost as far as their physical attributes allow, and they are admitted to any pursuit or calling to which they are adapted by nature. Nothing like this condition of affairs prevailed five or six decades ago, when they were not known professionally in theology, medicine or law. Now we have, according to statistics taken several years ago, between three and four thousand ministers belonging to what used to be called the weaker sex, seven or eight thousand women physicians and surgeons, and over a thousand Paris who have taken up the practice of the law for a living.

In the late forties Mrs. Blackwell, a graduate of the theological school of Oberlin College, was denied for six years the opportunity to preach in a Congregational pulpit. She was in the advanced guard of the army of women who are now acquiring the higher education which will fit them to be intellectual workers along various lines of endeavor. It was thought a half century or so ago that if women were allowed to be school teachers that was as far as they could reasonably expect to go along the line of work in which men were almost exclusively employed.

The girls seem more anxious than the boys to obtain an education, for as a rule the latter leave school earlier than the former. There are more girls in the public schools than there are boys. In these institutions in New York City fifty-eight per cent, we are told, are girls, and in Chicago the female pupils far outnumber the rest of the masculine scholars, whose minds are more on sports than on study. The Philadelphia schools show even a larger difference in favor of the girls.

The fact that nearly three per cent, of the public school teachers in this country are women may have some

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her

Knoxville, Iowa.—"I suffered with pains low down in my right side for a year or more and was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham and took E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, and am glad to say that your medicines and kind letters have done more for me than anything else and I had the best physicians here. I can do my work and rest well at night. I believe there is nothing like the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. CLARA FRANKS, R.F.D., No. 3, Knoxville, Iowa.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backaches, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

thing to do with the ambition of girls in attending school and preparing themselves for a career of usefulness. Meanwhile the home will not die out for the domestic spirit is still uppermost in women as the large attendance at the cooking schools fully demonstrates.—Portland Express.

LOCAL HISTORY.

there are but two or three houses near said place in which people who have business at the court can obtain lodging and entertainment, hence that part of our people during their attendance on the court are much distressed being obliged to lodge on a floor or in barn or sit all night by the fire during their whole stay at the court.

"Wherefore your petitioners humbly pray that said courts may be run over to the eastern side of Pownallboro which is much nearer the center of the county both as to inhabitants and where those who have business at the courts may be sufficiently provided for, there being a sufficient number of houses in which entertainment and lodgings may be obtained. If Pownallboro should be divided, as we understand there is a petition for this purpose now before you, let the eastern side be made the site town of the county, it being a place well suited for courts to be held."

(Fifty-seven names are appended to the petition.) So interested did the members of the General Court become in the matter that a census was ordered of the East and West districts respectively of Pownallboro which is dated June 19, 1769, of the persons, log houses, framed houses, one and two story houses, number of rooms, squares of glass, brick chimneys, fireplaces contained in each, with number of persons residing in each under and over sixteen years of age, etc., etc.

Sworn to reports were made by the selectmen and sheriff of the county. The names of each male is given, but the list is too long to be used here though the substance of the report is here presented as follows, the East, representing Wiscasset, the West, Frankfort, or Pownallboro as Frankfort was then called.

	East	West
Families	114	60
Personal houses, inhabited	99	17
Log houses, inhabited	61	45
The story houses	94	54
Two story houses	9	8
Houses with fire places	125	110
Brick chimneys	26	25
Chimneys stone	23	15
Squares of glass in all the houses	1205	3340
Persons under 16 years	330	190
Above 16 years	560	190
No. of inhabitants	890	380
No. of males	518	199
No. of females	372	181
No. of old log houses not inhabited	0	7

The report of the State special census takers, or table, presented above, is valuable viewed historically from any point of observation, for it exhibits the real condition, or progress in civilization existing among our then ancestors.

proved wilderness in that region. What was true then of Pownallboro and Wiscasset was true of very much of the District of Maine, and continued true in Bethel and vicinity a good while.

The table presents the number of panes of glass in each hut, log house, domicile or by whatever name the abiding places of the settlers were called at the time in the region where the census was made which was 144 years ago. Many of the settlers in each plantation, who were mostly French or Germans had neither glass windows or brick chimneys but in the matter of apparent poverty Wiscasset excelled, Frankfort having more panes of glass and brick chimneys than Wiscasset, its competitor, Frankfort having by far the largest house on the ground floor, and the tallest, being three story, erected in 1761, by the Plymouth Company to accommodate the courts and county officials, and now stands without the "hand of progress" having been laid heavily upon its exterior, and by the aid of the accompanying census table, Williamson's history of Maine, and fragments of descriptions of the building and what transpired in it, gathered from many sources, I am enabled to furnish the dimensions of its outside and considerable relative to its inside.

Upon the ground it is 44x45 feet, and three story as has been stated. The "court chamber" was 45x19 1/2 feet with two fireplaces. It stood where it is now seen upon the eastern bank of the Kennebec river, opposite the head of Swan's Island, which is now the town of Perkins—Incorporated June 24th, 1847—constituting a part of the town of Dresden before its incorporation, and is a couple of miles up the river from Richmond village. I was very near it a few years since but did not enter it, not thinking I should ever attempt to write a notice of it for publication. The old fort was but a few paces up the river from the location and the present house was constructed within the fort yard. It had at the date of the census a "stone" cellar; two brick chimneys; six rooms with fire places, 358 panes of glass, five intended rooms not partitioned off; two persons under 16 years of age; nine persons above 16 years—five males and six females. And in it Samuel Goodwin dwelled and court and other meetings were held, some of Goodwin's descendants now occupying the premises. But before proceeding further I want to make plain, if I can the relationship between the names of Frankfort, Wiscasset, Pownallboro and Dresden, a problem that is hard solving.

When Lincoln County was created Wiscasset was existing as a young "plantation," which is now the shire town of the county. The same statement is also true of Frankfort, located upon the eastern side of the Kennebec river, the two places being some eight or ten miles apart, as has been stated, and like Wiscasset was existing under a "plantation" form of government, which is only a lax form of local government, where but few legal restraints are imposed—little "Democratic republic." In 1760, when Lincoln county was erected, these two plantations were united territorially by an edict of the General court and the reason given the same of Pownallboro, then spelled Pownallborough, and called it the county, or the shire town of the county, but the "legal" union was anything but satisfactory to the dwellers of the region as I have somewhat already shown and propose to show more fully later on.

The Frankfort plantation dropped its original name and accepted the name of Pownallboro but Wiscasset never did this; it adhered to its original Indian name though the same had no legal standing prior to 1802. Pownallboro was largely in its ecclesiastical observance Episcopalian while Wiscasset was Congregational.

In the very court house I am now endeavoring to describe for preaching "sedition" or attempting to teach in his sermons obedience to the wishes of the people of Pownallboro to the wishes of Parliament in 1776, Rev. Jacob Bailey, a pious, scholarly and voluminous writer was tried and though acquitted by the court was forced by the people to become an exile. From the census tables from which the draft here presented is made the divine, it appears, lived in a log house, one story, three rooms, two brick chimneys, cellar, seventy-eight squares of glass, wife, daughter over 16 years of age, and another person of the feminine sex. He left much descriptive writing in manuscript of persons and localities but very little has been preserved in print, though his diary has been of great service in various ways. He was a graduate of Harvard college so was William Cushing of the same class, who became the first Judge of Probate of the new county and his brother Charles the sheriff.

The latter was the chief complainant against the Rev. Mr. Bailey. William climbed the ladder of fame becoming a Judge of the U. S. Supreme court. He "lodged and kept his chamber in a two story framed house with a chimney, two fireplaces, forty-four squares of glass, with a wife and daughter under sixteen."

Associated with these was John Adams, Esq., who was a practitioner in the Pownallboro forum and who became the second President of the United States; and David Stowell, Esq., of York, the former making the journey from his home in Boston on horseback through bridle paths in the woods, they doing most of the legal business of the Pownallboro court, the Plymouth company furnishing the major part of the legal requirements, consisting of "writs of ejectment" served upon squatters for trespass upon the landed claims of the Plymouth company.

Mr. Adams kept a diary in which are found a few entries relating to the Pownallboro court house affairs. His states: "You will find dirt enough, and very miserable accommodations for lodging for yourself and horse. If you sit the evening you will find the house full of people drinking, dancing, flip, toddy, carousing and swearing."

From other sources of information it appears the "tavern" part of the court house had an unsavory reputation. At last a public protest appeared signed by attorneys, jurymen and others. The original is on file in the Massachusetts archives.

Upon the 25th of June, 1782, the Massachusetts General Court yielded to often repeated supplications and substituted the name of

for that of Pownallboro and the Wiscasset "East Parish," or "East Precinct of Pownallboro," became the place of records for Lincoln county, and the place of holding the county courts, but Wiscasset was still, it seems, without a legally established name though using the name of Wiscasset in a legal manner.

"Gracious, Uncle Timrod!" exclaimed his fashionable city niece, in the corridor of the big hotel, "why did you remain in the dining room so long after we had dined?" "Well, I'll tell you, Sis, I considered the old man, with a broad grin. "The waiter that waited on us kept holding out his hand when I started out and of course I had to shake it every time. Wasn't going to let it be said that he had more manners than your Uncle Timrod."

ON NURSERY TABLE

DAINTIES THAT WILL BE ENJOYED BY LITTLE FOLKS.

When the Small Stomach Has Advanced Beyond the Bread and Milk Stage, Try the Preparations Described Below.

At 3 1/2 years the healthy child begins to crave the piquant dishes which are the privilege of its elders. Then small hands begin to abstract bits of celery and lettuce in the kitchen and sometimes the infant cherub will be found with a pickle almost bigger than itself. The mother is horrified or indifferent and so the poor baby gets too much of a bad thing or too little of a good.

It must be admitted that children as young as this are better off with simple food, but when the human body begins to chew it a bit of crisp celery or lettuce sprinkled delicately with salt cannot help do good.

For children older than this, from six on, there may be a little variety in the food that has begun to bore by introducing some special dish that spurs the appetite. Any one of these simple recipes will be found a coaxer for the child that knows how to use its teeth and is craving salad or new tastes.

ORANGES or Grape Fruit Salad.—Separate the fruit in plugs and peel and shred these into fragments. Season with a slight dust of fine table salt and one teaspoonful of pure olive oil. Then pile the bright mass upon a tender lettuce leaf and pin this over the top, bundle fashion, with a wooden toothpick. In this shape the salad will be fascinating and the young stomach will get the tang it has longed.

BANANA SALAD.—A single banana is enough for one child. Peel and scrape the fruit of the pithy coating and then cut it in thin slices. Arrange these on a lettuce leaf in layers, with a squeeze of lemon juice and a pinch of sugar between each one.

PRUNE SALAD.—Soak half a dozen big French prunes in water and when soft dry them carefully. Pile them in a circle on a dish with a slice of lemon and a teaspoonful of sugar in the center.

APPLE SALAD.—Cut a greening or a bright pippin in splinters and season with salt and a teaspoonful of oil. If the apple skin is red and the fruit has been pared with that point in view the seasoned fruit may be rolled into a ball and the gay paring wrapped about it to look like an apple.

FIG SALAD.—Soak dried figs and then boil them in a very little water until tender. Chill them on the ice and then serve with strained honey.

EGG BALLS.—These go prettily as a dressing for lettuce or cold string beans cooked in plain water. Boil the eggs hard, chill and mix the yolk with a few drops of sour cream and salt to taste. Then form this into balls with butter boards, put them over the vegetables and add a warm sour cream dressing.

CHEESE BALLS.—The little cream cheeses at ten cents apiece are suitable for these. Make also into balls with the butter boards and arrange them in threes on a little plate with a dab or two of some pure fruit jelly.

New Egg Glasses.

Those who prefer not to eat their morning eggs out of the shell are taking delight in the handsome new silver and crystal egg holders. These are in the shape of wineglasses, the stem and openwork bowl being of silver and the inside tumbler of thin fine glass.

These are considered quite smart to give as wedding presents. They are also admirable to give to an invalid or the leisurely woman who always has her breakfast in her room.

Cabbage Beef Soup.

Three or five pounds neck or corner parts of beef chopped into small pieces. Put to boil in five quarts of cold water. When it simmers, skim, boil slowly for four or five hours. Take out the meat and add one cup each of chopped turnips and cabbage and half a cup each of chopped carrots and calves, also one cup of rice. Boil till the rice is cooked. Cabbage may be used alone and the other vegetables left out if desired.

Grandmother's Pound Cake.

Two eggs, one pound each of flour and sugar, three quarters of a pound of butter, and the juice of a fresh lemon. Strain the whites of eggs through cheesecloth, beat the yolks light with half the sugar, then beat the whites light with the rest of the sugar. Cream the butter, add the yolks and sugar, then the flour, the whites with sugar, and mix thoroughly. Bake one hour.

REPARTEE IN THE FAR WEST.

The host of the Red Dog hotel walked up to the bar, where Arizona Bill was sitting "you up." "I understand," he remarked, looking up to Bill, "as how you have been making disparaging remarks about my establishment. Now I hereby dropped around to make you eat yer words."

"Where," said Bill, pleasantly. "I'd just as soon."

The host fell back in surprise, and every glass dropped on to the bar.

"Yes, son'Time," said Bill, earnestly looking at the host along the barrel of a .44; "yes, I don't mind eatin' my words, because they will be all that I have been able to eat since I have been here."—Judge.

WILDER PEAR IS VALUABLE

Early Market Variety, Being Beautiful in Appearance, of Fair Size and Good Flavor.

A valuable early market pear, being beautiful in appearance, of fair size and very good flavor; probably the best of its season.

Origin: chance seedling on south shore of Lake Erie. Introduced by Green's Nursery Company. Tree: quite vigorous, productive, and an early bearer when grafted on the quince. Fruit: fair to large in size, form ovate, obtuse pyriform, sometimes shouldered at stem, color greenish yellow, with deep red cheek and numerous gray dots, stem stout, three-quarters to one-inch in length, calyx open. Flesh: white, texture tender, fine grained, flavor sweet, aromatic and very pleasant. Quality is very good.

Wilder Pear.

The Wilder is first-class for home market says America Cultivator. It ripens in August. The fruit is two and one-half to three inches in diameter, color, greenish yellow, with deep red cheek and numerous gray dots. The flesh is white, tender and fine grained, and the flavor spicy and sweet. The tree is hardy and generally described as a good grower, but, in the writer's experience, it is not such a vigorous grower as some of the other kinds and does not come into bearing especially soon. It does well grafted on quince stock. The Wilder yields fair to large crops under average conditions. It is not a very good shipper, but is most suitable for the early, nearby trade.

What Is Education?

"Education," says Professor Huxley, "is the instruction of the intellect in the laws of nature, under which name I include not merely things and their forces, but men and their ways; and the fashioning of the affections and of the will into an earnest and loving desire to move in harmony with those laws. For me, education means neither more nor less than this. Anything which professes to call itself education must be tried by this standard; and if it fails to stand the test, I will not call it education, whatever may be the force of authority, or of numbers, upon the other side."

What Would Happen?

Friend—Look here, old man. I'm stuck on a girl, and she likes poetry. Now I don't know how to write the stuff, and I thought you could help me out a little. It would be a great—
Poet—I know—I know. But listen! Two years ago a fellow came to me with the same story, and I fell for it. And the girl found him out!
Poet—And spurned him!
Friend—And spurned him! Now if you like me, don't put me up against that horrible thing again!

Prudent.

"Be the bride and groom especially requested their friends not to throw rice after them!"
"Yes, they asked us to stand the rice over in a package so that it could be used when they go to housekeeping."
